It's SUMMER here at the Nursery!

We had the opportunity to work with the Historic District of Columbia this past Spring to provide trees for a grant that the Robert Mills Historic Neighborhood received from Columbia Green. The grant was for the neighborhood's Tree Incubator Program which is a program to begin putting in new trees close to the older trees that are nearing the end of their life cycle. The City will let the older trees live out their full cycle, but when they eventually come down, the program will have a 10 or 20-year old tree already well-established to replace it, growing nearby. Elizabeth Marks, president of the neighborhood, says "We want to keep the Historic District's massive tree canopy as intact as possible. Planting new trees now will insure a continuous canopy for the next 100 years." There were a total of 24 trees planted throughout the neighborhood and everybody loved them.
